

To: Whom It May Concern

Date: 11/22/2011

Subject: Dayna Steele

I had the great pleasure of attending a presentation by Dayna Steele at the Texas Art Education Association Supervisor Meeting. The presentation was truly invigorating. She not only helped the supervisors to see means to inspire students and teachers, she made the experience fun. I left the meeting very happy. What could be better than learning something and still having a great time?

From her lively experience in in radio she is able to capture moments that teach us about success. Her program is based on the concepts of passion, confidence, quality, organization, technology, branding, networking, knowledge, health, and appreciation. You can find her message in her book Rock To The Top What I Learned About Success From The World's Greatest Rock Stars. Her voice resonates with our need to renew our passion to be beneficial as leaders. Passion is contagious. By utilizing the other concepts we can find means to spread our passion to be successful at our goals.

I am very thankful of the opportunity to have met Dayna Steele. In times of our difficult economy we all need to be reminded of why we have chosen our profession. In particular Dayna reminded me to thank others for what they have done. Even to the simplest thing of giving recognition to the technical assistant that made sure her computer was speaking to the projector. In my profession as the Visual Arts Coordinator for Plano Independent School District it is critical that I see a vision and find a path to help the students in our district. Her message keeps me grounded as I work to provide the best educational opportunities available for the 55,000 students in Plano ISD.

Sincerely,

Janice Truitt
Visual Arts Coordinator
Plano Independent School District